"40K ON THE ROCKS - THE BATTLE OF CROOKNESS

On a sunny weekend in July 2012 Scarborough Games Society held its first Battle On The Beach event. Starting in the early morning, as many bags, boxes and carry cases as possible were squashed into a small car and taken up the coast to an isolated cove at Crookness. There, a few dozen square meters of rock, sand, pools and seaweed became sweeping plains, dominating cliffs, and deep lakes as 10,000 points of Warhammer 40k figures lined up for battle.

On one side of the canyon were two detachments of Marines, the Ultramarines and Crimson Fists, whilst opposing them were valiant Imperial Guardsmen from Catachan, and Marines from the Space Wolf chapter.

Things started badly for the Guard when a squad of Marine veterans landed in a drop pod right behind the Baneblade, vaporising it with their many, many Melta guns. They, in turn, were vaporised by hell guns, so everyone was happy.

The artillery of the Imperial Guard opened up first, as it easily out ranged anything else on the board. In fact they were deployed so far back that the only thing to come close to them were a squad of adventurous Scouts.

The vast distances proved a struggle for all infantry on foot. There were complaints from a Terminator squad in particular, who said they hadn't walked so far since basic training. Meanwhile those with speed, such as the Marines' Stormtalon and the Guards' Valkyrie, proved invaluable.

After about 5 hours and maybe 15 turns, victory was declared for the Ultramarines and Crimson Fists. A great time was had by all, with a barbecue at half

Whilst out on our Nottingham visits a couple weeks ago we Hi Jacked Mark Wallace of Mantic Games as he was making a delivery, and our GCN Highwayman got his hands on a Dreadball set to see,

ITS AWESOME!!!

FIRST OFFICIAL U.K. TOURNAMENT SPORTS FANS!

Mantic Games in association with the GCN are to hold the very first official UK Dreadball tournament, however there is a twist, as the tournament will be held in two halves at two separate shows one week apart.

First half, (round 1), to held at the Vapnartak show at York Racecourse on 3rd February.

Second half, (round 2), to be held at the Hammerhead show in Newark, Nottinghamshire on 10th February.

The winner of the first half and the winner of the second half will be invited to Mantic HQ (date to be organised), for the play off to decide the grand champion of the very first official Mantic Games Dreadball tournament.

Registration for the tournament is on the day at the relevant show.
Cost of entry to tournament, normal show entry price..
